

Proto-type Work

This is the custom fabrication of a new product, a revised product or a new concept idea. This type of work is the combination of the company engineering and a sheet metal master journeyman that will work together to produce the end product.

