

The Client

- The client and/or their caregiver will need to be an “advocate” for themselves. This is an extremely important concept. Those that do not advocate for themselves put at risk what they may be able to obtain during a home modification project. The client is an intricate part of the home modification case. Always remember what is or is not put into the home will ultimately be the decision of the homeowner/client. They should consider themselves as another team member as the home modification project proceeds. It is to their possible detriment if they do not stay engaged in the process of the home modification.
