

Metal Siding

Metal siding or sheeting is a flat sheet that is roll formed to a variety of configurations. It is used to cover the side walls of a building. Some systems have an inner panel (liner panel). This liner panel will receive hard board insulation and the metal siding is installed over the inner panel to form an insulated wall. Materials are painted steel, aluminum, fiberglass reinforced, PVC, stainless steel and galvanized.

